FROM THE PREACHER

New Testament Christians Must be Old Testament Christians, part 2

Last week we began considering the importance of the Old Testament for Christians. The first two reasons were 1) The Old Testament is a source of theology, not just children's stories, and 2) the Old Testament is the Scripture of Jesus and the Apostles. This week, I would like to offer two more reasons for the continuing importance of the Old Testament.

3. The New Testament is the Fulfillment of the Old Testament

The New Testament presents itself as the fulfillment of the Old Testament. John the Baptist introduces Jesus as "the Lamb of God" (John 1:29), referencing the Old Testament. Jesus, the personal fulfillment of the Old Testament, describes Himself and His mission in Old Testament terms. He opens and closes His pre-resurrection ministry quoting the Old Testament (Luke 4:14-30; Matthew 27:45-50). After His resurrection, Jesus teaches the disciples from the Old Testament and reminds them that they are witnesses to the fulfillment of the Old Testament (Luke 24:44-49). If we want to understand how the New fulfills the Old, we need to know what the Old Testament says.

4. The Old Testament Makes Up the Majority of Our Bibles

Finally, we ought to give attention to the Old Testament for the simple fact that it makes up about 75% of Scripture. If we neglect 75% of someone's speech, much of the other 25% they say will not make sense, simply because we have not paid close enough attention to understand the context. That would be like reading the last book or watching the last movie of a series with no knowledge of the previous books or movies. There's going to be a lot that we miss, simply because we don't know what came before.

Not only that, but if we neglect 75% of someone's words, we will have a diminished relationship with them. Try listening to only 25% of your spouse's words and see how that works out! Or, consider the time that your spouse only listened to 25% of your words – rather frustrating isn't it? The Bible, Old and New Testaments, is God's word and if we want to build a strong relationship with God, we need to pay attention to all of His words. Only then can we take into account the "whole counsel of God" (Acts 20:27).

Conclusion: The Old Testament is the Word of God

The Old Testament is a rich field of theology. Jesus held the Old Testament in the highest regard, pointing to it as a source of authority and as the foundation for His own person and mission. Jesus and the writers of the New Testament were immersed in the Old Testament; it was the formative literature in their lives. While we do not have the exact same relationship with the Old Testament as Jews did before Jesus, it continues to be the word of God.

When we listen to God's word in both the Old and New Testaments, we fulfill Jesus's statement that "every scribe who has been trained for the kingdom of heaven is like a master of a house, who brings out of his treasure what is new and what is old" (Matthew 13:52). May we be such faithful scribes, neglecting neither the Old or New Testaments as we grow in our relationship with God.
